The City of Camden left Louisville for Southern ports with over 300 tons of freight, more than has left there in a sin-gle shipment for some time.

The opposition Cincinnati and Chilo packets are not content with carrying people for nothing, but are fixing a plan to pay them to ride. It is getting dan-gerous for a man to go near one of them —they'll carry him off.

The bad condition of the Monongahela river dam—the wickets are so rotten in places that the water comes through— makes river men complain that they are noff it to keep the pools at a good boating stage. An appeal will be made to Congress to have an appropriation made for their improvement.

The bare and shoals along the upper endot the Ohio river are all out of water; the river has fallen so low that it can be foreded in many places without danger. All the fributary streams are showing bottom, and the promised rains have me materialized; the indications were good for rain for the past two days but mone fell.

D, G, MeVean, Administrator of New-ton C, Schoonover, filed suit in the Cir-euti Court at Covington Monday against the Louisville and Cincinnati Packet Company for the recovery of $25,000 damages. The petition alloges the company, in whose employ Schoonover was in July, 1901, wrongfully overworked him while acting as a routstant on the him while acting as a roustabout on the steamer Lizzie Bay and that owing to his age, 17 years, the work was beyond his endurance, causing him to become fatigued and fall into the Ohio river, meeting death by drowning.
